Introduction

The North American Bird Phenology Program, part of the USA-National Phenology Network, was a network of volunteer observers who recorded information on first arrival dates, maximum abundance, and departure dates of migratory birds across North America. Active between 1880 and 1970, the program was coordinated by the Federal government and sponsored by the American Ornithologists' Union. It exists now as a historic collection of six million migration card observations, illuminating almost a century of migration patterns and population status of birds. Today, in an innovative project to curate the data and make them publically available, the records are being scanned and placed on the internet, where volunteers worldwide transcribe these records and add them into a database for analysis.

Audience

This document was developed to help volunteers of all ages to participate with the Bird Phenology Project.

Transcribing Important Facts

- ✓ To transcribe migration cards from home, please complete simple registration form found at https://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/BPP/v4/Register2.cfm.

- ✓ Please remember to transcribe exactly what you see! Do not correct observer names, bird species, spelling and punctuation or modernize words.

- ✓ There are several ways to take part with the BPP! Historical migration cards are currently being scanned and are available on the BPP website (http://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/). You can become one of the many volunteers from around the world to sign onto our site and transcribe these records for our database. Also, if you live in the Baltimore-Washington area and would like to volunteer in the BPP office we welcome you to come and take part in this program.

- ✓ Each migration card is entered twice by different people to insure quality control. The two records are compared, if they match, the data is sent into the database, if the data does not match, it stays in the system for a third transcription.

- ✓ Please skip any fields where the information is not provided.

- ✓ Please do share your questions and suggestions to the BPP! Contact us at bpp@usgs.gov.

Section 2 – Method

2.1 Logging In

Using your Internet browser, please go to https://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/. On the top menu, go to Participants and scroll down to V4 Data Entry.

- Enter in your username (the email address you used to register and password details and click on the login button.

- Please note that we cannot reset your password at this time. If you lose your password, please register again.

2.2 Transcribing Options

Once logged-in, a migration card will appear in your transcribing window. You have three options available to you:

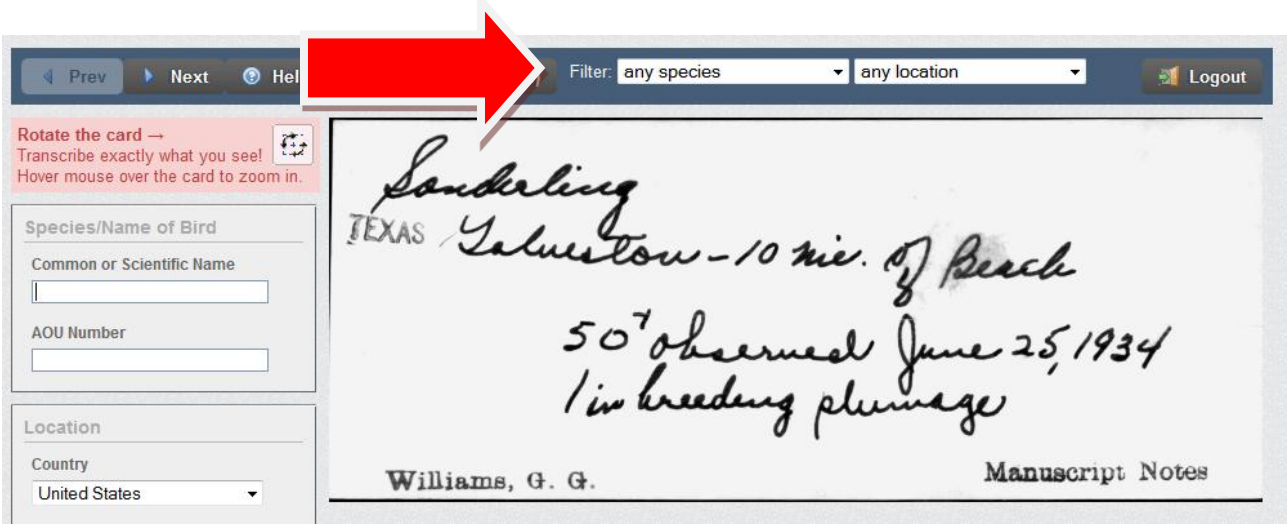
1. Start transcribing the card that is offered to you.

2. Select a specific species to transcribe using the first filter drop down menu in the top menu bar. Once the species selected, all subsequent cards that will appear in the transcribing window will be of the species you selected.

3. Select a specific location to transcribe using the second filter drop down menu in the top menu bar. Once the location selected, all subsequent cards that will appear in the transcribing window will be of the location you selected.

If you choose the first option, please start transcribing the information you see in the transcribing window.

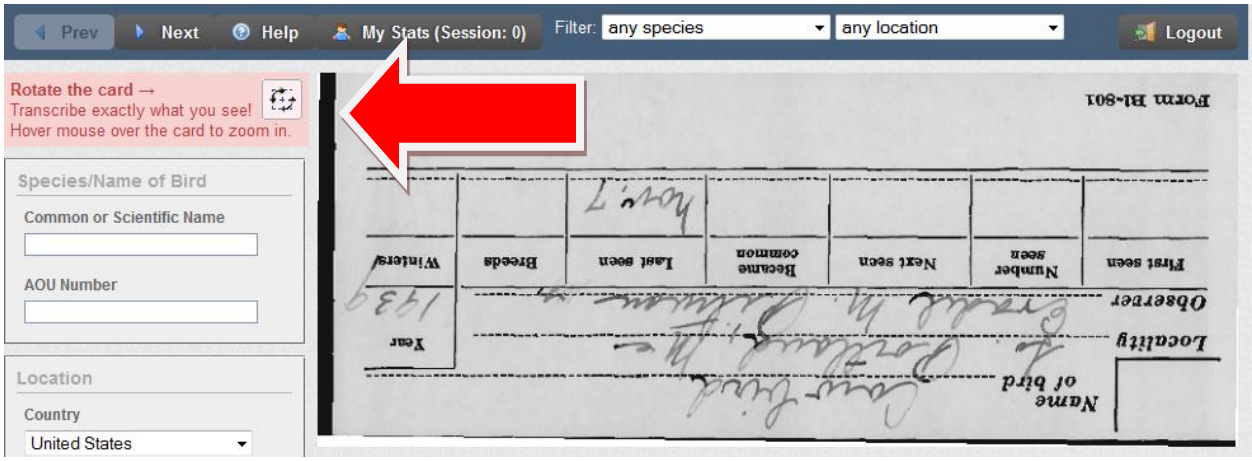
If you choose the second or third option, please select a species or location of your choice by selecting the appropriate filter drop down menu as shown below:



2.3 Transcribing Tools

2.3.1 The Rotate View Tool

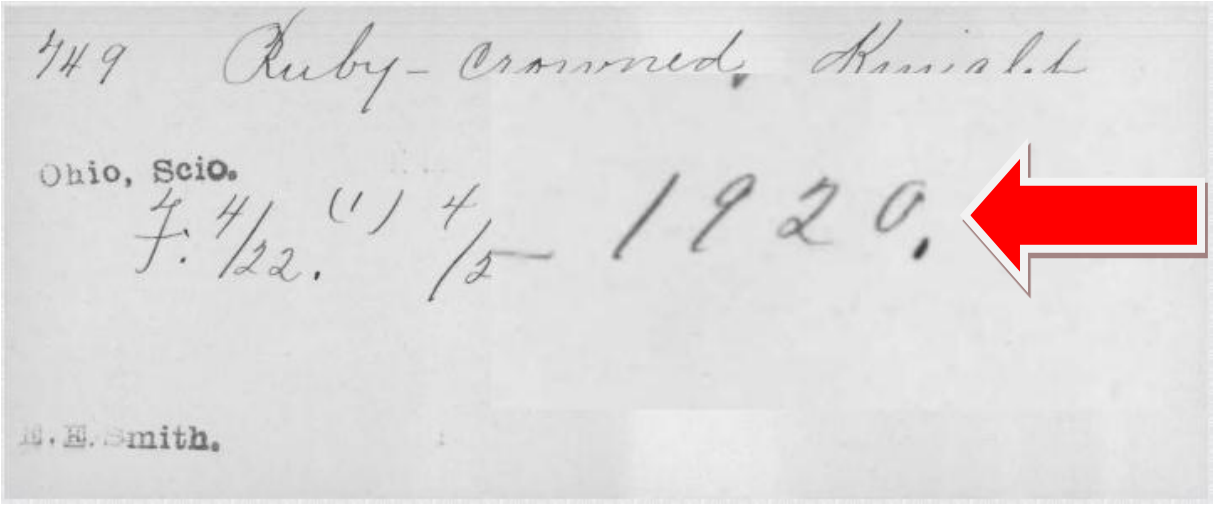
If your migration card is presented to you upside down, you can click on the rotate button to turn the card around in the correct orientation.



2.3.2 The Zoom Tool

You can also mouse over (use your mouse pointer over an object) the migration card to zoom an area of the card.

In the example below, the zoom tool was used to take a better look at the reference year.



2.4 Transcribing Migration Cards

2.4.1 The Species/Name of Bird area

Start transcribing by entering the appropriate information in the Species/Name of Bird area.

Start transcribing by entering the appropriate information in the Species/Name of Bird area.

1. Enter the common or scientific name written on the migration card in the Common or Scientific Name text box. Please transcribe exactly what you see, without correcting name spelling, punctuation or updating the species name with new revised scientific or common names.

2. Enter the AOU (American Ornithologist Union) written on the migration card in the AOW Number text box. Generally, the AOU number will be indicated on the top left of the migration card.

2.4.2 The Location area

Transcribe the appropriate information in the Location area.

1. Select the country in which the observation was made by selecting the appropriate country in the Country drop down menu.

2. Select the U.S. states or Canadian provinces in which the observation was made by selecting the appropriate State or Province in the State/Province drop down menu.

3. If available, enter the county or parish information in the County/Parish text box. If you have any location information that you feel does not fit into either category, please transcribe it into the City/Town text box below.

4. Enter the city or town in which the observation was made in the City/Town text box.

✓ Transcribing Note:
If you are unsure of a location, you can use various websites to research the location. A few examples are:

- USGS Geographic Name Information System (GNIS)
  http://geonames.usgs.gov/pls/gnispublic
- Google maps
  https://maps.google.com/
- TerraServer
  http://www.terraserver.com/
- PlaceNames.com
  http://www.placenames.com/

2.4.3 The Observer area

Transcribe the appropriate information in the Observer area.

1. Enter the observer name written on the migration card in the Observer text box. Please transcribe exactly what you see, without correcting observer names, including spelling and punctuation.

✓ Transcribing Note:
The location of the observer name can vary. It is most commonly found on the middle top of the migration card, in a form or at the bottom of a Field Report File. The name can contain a prefixes, first, middle and last name or any combination of these. Please write exactly what you see.

2.4.4 The Event Observation Data area

Transcribing the event observation data can be a bit more involved than the rest of the data in the transcribing window. Each observer can provide the information in various ways. The following section will provide you with examples on how to fill-out this area.

1. First, enter the year when the observation was made in the Reference Year text box. This information is generally found following an "F" written by hand in the middle of the migration card (See example 1 below). Please keep in mind that this information can be provided in a form (See example 2 below) or written out in a Field Report File (See example 3 below).

It is important to note that the BPP only accepted records from 1880 to 1970. So, if the card says ‘80 to ‘99, you know it is 1880 to 1899. If the card is ’00 to ’70, it is 1900 to 1970. The year generally appears after the observation data information.

2. Next, enter the month, day, and number of birds seen on the first day by using the First Arrival drop down menu to select the month. Next, enter the day and number of bird first seen in the No. of Birds text box.

3. Following the same process as before, enter the month, day, and number of birds next seen using the Next Seen drop down menu and text boxes, the month, day, and number of birds where they were most common using the Most Common drop down menu and text boxes and the month, day, and number of birds last seen using the Last Seen drop down menu and text boxes.

Example 1 – Date Information Written by Hand

✓ Transcribing Note:

In the example above, the observer only provides the information when the bird was first seen. In this case, you would transcribe this information and skip over the fields associated with Next Seen, Most Common and Last Seen observations. If you are provided with additional information, please enter the information given to you in the appropriate fields.

Example 2 – Date Information within a Form

✓ Transcribing Note:

In the example above, the observer provides all the information. In this case, you would transcribe all the date information in the First Arrival, Next Seen, Most Common and Last Seen fields. Note the reference year at the top right of the card.

Example 3 – Date Information within a Field Report File

✓ Transcribing Note:

In the example above, the observer provides the dates of his or her field trip. In this case, you would transcribe the first date using the First Arrival fields and the second date using the Last Seen fields. The Next Seen and Most Common text field are skipped. Note that the reference year is given to you at the end of the field trip dates.

4. Next, select the Yes, No or Unknown radio button next to Breeds? according to the information provided to you on the migration card. Please note that the Unknown radio button will always be selected as the default. If you do not see any breeding information on the card, just leave the Unknown radio button selected.

5. Next, select the Yes, No or Unknown radio button next to Overwinters? according to the information provided to you on the migration card. Please note that the Unknown radio button will always be selected as the default. If you do not see any overwintering information on the card, just leave the Unknown radio button selected.

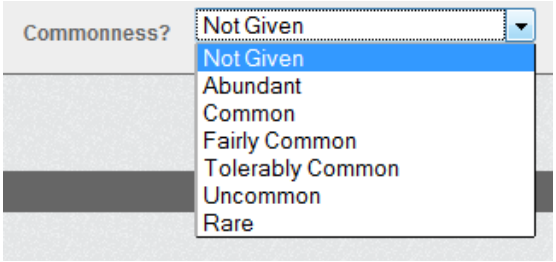
6. Lastly, select the appropriate word in the Commonness? Drop down menu that represents the commonness of the bird(s). Your options are Not Given, Abundant, Common, Fairly Common, Tolerably Common, Uncommon and rare. Most of the times, migration cards will have the exact words provided. At times, however, these words will be abbreviated or slightly different. If you are uncertain of a commonness value, please note card as a problem card (See subsection 2.4.5 below).

   The commonness of a species refers to its frequent occurrence in a particular area. Leave the default selection of Not Given if not information about commonness is provided.



2.4.5 The Additional Notes area

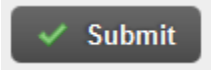
This section allows you to report any information provided by the observer that does not fit into any category above as well as report any issues with the migration card to BPP staff.

1. First, write in the Additional Notes text box all the other information provided in the migration card that you have not already entered in the other fields. There is one exception here, when transcribing a Field Report File, please transcribe ALL information found on the card as it is written.

2. If necessary, you can report a problem with a migration card using the Problem with Card? text box. The options available to you are Card damaged, Card all/partially unreadable, Not a Migration card and Other.

2.5 Submitting Migration Cards

When you have completed transcribing all the information on the migration card, you can submit your data to BPP staff by clicking on the submit button at the bottom left of the window.



2.6 Logging Off

Once you are done with your current transcribing session, you can click on the logout button to log out or disconnect from the BPP database.

I. General Information

1. What is Phenology?
   Phenology is the study of recurring plant and animal life cycle stages, or phenophases, such as leafing and flowering of plants, maturation of agricultural crops, emergence of insects, and migration of birds. Many of these events are sensitive to climatic variation and change, and are simple to observe and record.

2. What is the Bird Phenology Program (BPP)?
   The North American Bird Phenology Program, part of the USA-National Phenology Network, was a network of volunteer observers who recorded information on first arrival dates, maximum abundance, and departure dates of migratory birds across North America. Active between 1880 and 1970, the program was coordinated by the Federal government and sponsored by the American Ornithologists' Union. It exists now as a historic collection of six million migration card observations, illuminating almost a century of migration patterns and population status of birds. Today, in an innovative project to curate the data and make them publically available, the records are being scanned and placed on the internet, where volunteers worldwide transcribe these records and add them into a database for analysis.

3. How does the BPP work?
   BPP relies heavily on the participation of citizen scientists. We currently house millions of cards which have been prioritized and scanned. We then rely solely on volunteers to transcribe that data into our database using our online transcription system. Once cards are transcribed and sent into the database. the information can be analyzed, revealing changes in migratory bird patterns.

4. What is an AOU number?
   AOU stands for the American Ornithologist Union. The AOU created an official source on the taxonomy of birds; assigning a 3-digit notation for each species. AOU numbers are still accurate but no longer commonly used. Today scientists commonly use a four-letter ALPHA code to denote a species. Infrequently, you will see an AOU number with a decimal point to denote a subspecies.

5. What is the USA- National Phenology Network?
   The USA National Phenology Network (USA-NPN) monitors the influence of climate on the phenology of plants, animals, and landscapes. The organization does this by encouraging people to observe phenological events like leaf out, flowering, migrations, and egg laying, and by providing a place for people to enter, store, and share their observations. The USA-NPN also work with researchers to develop tools and techniques to use these observations to support a wide range of decisions made routinely by citizens, managers, scientists and others, including decisions related to allergies, wildfires, water, and conservation.

6. How is the BPP integrated with the USA National Phenology Network?
   The USA- NPN collects phenological observations of plants and animals in cooperation with existing phenology monitoring programs, with the aim to increase our understanding of how the phenologies of organisms and landscapes respond to environmental variation and climate change. The goals of the USA-NPN and the BPP align naturally. In particular, the USA-NPN database will provide an ideal location to store the BPP data, making it publicly accessible and integrating it with other phenological data. Also, the BPP methods for digitizing historical data will be adapted to digitize other historical datasets of phenology data. The USA-NPN's relationships with numerous government agencies, academic institutions, nongovernmental programs, and other organizations, and its knowledge of many key historical datasets, will facilitate the use of the BPP's digitization techniques to rescue important data.

7. How can I get Bird Phenology Program Data?
   BPP data is available and openly accessible to the public and scientific community! If you are interested in downloading data, go to: http://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/BPPData.cfm. Additional records will be added to the website as they become available.

8. How do I get involved?
   There are several ways to take part with the BPP. Historical migration cards are currently being scanned and are available on the BPP website (www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/). You can become one of the many volunteers from around the world to sign onto our site and transcribe these records for our database. This will allow the migration records to become accessible for analysis. Also, if you live in the Baltimore-Washington area and would like to volunteer in the BPP office we welcome you to come and take part in this program. Please contact the BPP office at bpp@usgs.gov for more information.

9. How do I sign up for the newsletter?
   Please visit the registration page (https:/www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/Register2.cfm), scroll down under the form. Please enter your email address in the text box under "Sign up for the BPP E-Newsletter" and click go.

10. How do I unsubscribe from the newsletter?
    When you receive a newsletter and wish to unsubscribe, scroll to the bottom of the newsletter and click "Instant removal with SafeUnsubscribe."

II. Transcribing Basics

1. How do I become a participant?
   To begin transcribing cards, please visit the registration page (https:/www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/Register2.cfm) to complete our simple registration form. You will receive an email to the email address provided in the registration form. Click on the link in the confirmation link to confirm your registration and bring you to the transcription page. This link can be clicked only once. Once you have registered, you will be asked to watch a 15 minute training video which will teach you the process of transcribing the migration cards.

2. How does the transcribing process work?
   After login into our online transcription system (https://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/BPP/v4/index.php) your first migration card will appear in the top left portion of your screen. Follow the instructions that you have received in the training video to enter the data appropriately in the available fields. If you have any problems, please review the training video again, look at our FAQ page or contact the BPP Office at bpp@usgs.gov. Please enter the information on the card exactly as you see it. Do not correct spelling mistakes or any other errors you may see.

3. How does the BPP insure the accuracy of each card?

Migration card describes out of data bird names	Transcribe exactly what you see on the migration card. Transcribe the information given to you whether it be the scientific name, common name, or AOU number
AOU number is not listed on migration card	Leave the field blank

Each migration card is entered twice by different people to insure quality control. The two records are compared, if they match, the data is sent into the database, if the data does not match, it stays in the system for a third transcription.

4. Why are there different types of cards?
   Records were collected during a ninety year span and was coordinated by several different scientists. As each coordinator took leadership of the program, the format of the observation changed slightly. Wells Cooke, who began the program, transcribed each card by hand. Fred Lincoln later created the migration card chart. Chandler Robbins added fields to the chart to include the number of trips the observer took and the largest number of wintering and breeding pairs. Lastly is the "field report file" in which scientists transcribed their sometimes lengthy observations in the field from their field notebooks to a migration card.

5. How can I find out how many cards I have transcribed, how many cards are available for transcription and how many cards have been scanned?
   On the top of the transcription page there are stat bars which you can mouse over to get updated card counts. Simply press the My Stats button. The number of cards transcribed in your session is always displayed on the screen without pressing the button.

6. What happens to the information I transcribe?
   All of the useable data is submitted to the final database and will be released to the public on the Download Data webpage (http://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/BPPData.cfm). At the request of some researchers, some sample datasets have been copied from the database are being used in upcoming publications. Take a look at our Research webpage to learn about how the data is being used, http://www.pwrc.usgs.gov/bpp/Research2.cfm.
